SIXTH STREET VIADUCT REPLACEMENT PROJECT UPDATE

The Sixth Street Viaduct Replacement Project is a new, 3,500-foot long viaduct connecting Boyle Heights and the Arts District across the Los Angeles River, along with a park underneath called the Sixth Street PARC. The original viaduct was built in 1932, but had significantly deteriorated due to "concrete cancer"; it was demolished in 2016. The new viaduct will have ten pairs of lit arches, bike lanes and wider sidewalks, along with stairway access and bike ramps connecting to 12 acres of recreational and open space under the bridge. The bridge, designed by LA architect Michael Maltzan, is funded primarily through the Federal Highway Administration, with additional City support. The viaduct is expected to be completed by the end of 2020 and is being led by the City of Los Angeles Bureau of Engineering. Hear updates about the entire project and check out the latest PARC designs.

Special Guests: Julie Allen, Gary Lam, Mary Nemick, Bureau of Engineering

RECYCLA

In December 2016, the City of Los Angeles approved an exclusive waste-hauling contract with NASA Services as part of its Zero Waste LA Program. The contract is for the Downtown Zone, which is one of 11 zones that have been created as a part of the City's Exclusive Franchise System. The agreement requires all multifamily dwellings and commercial establishments in the Downtown Zone to contract with this provider for waste-hauling and recycling services. Join us to learn how this program may affect your properties.

Special Guest: Dan Meyer, LA Sanitation
